the affair. The testivities of the week at Newport began on Monday with a coaching pienic given by Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Five coachloads of guests South Portsmouth, where luncheon was served. The coaches were driven by John Jacob Astor, Frederic conson. Perry Belmont, Ogden Mills and Pres-tt Lawrence. Mrs. Vanderbilt, Miss Ogden Mills and Mrs. Bronson were the chaperons. The impor-tant incident of Tuesday was the ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Hugh Whitehouse, at Eastbourne Loge, in Rhode Island-ave., in honor of their laughter, M'ss Lily Whitehouse. The lights, flowers and draperies were in perfection, and for the occasion the plazzas were inclosed in two folds of heavy canvas, decorated with rare plants and illuminated with Japanese and Chinese lanterns. Every part of the house was decked with cut flowand white and pink sweet peas. Mrs. Whitehouse wore a gown of white satin trimmed with Venetiar paint lace, while Miss Whitehouse was attired in an effective gown of white satin trimmed with turquoise blue velvet and lace. The débutante gown was of white tulle, spangled silk, with silver trimmings. In the cotilion, which was led Thomas F. Cushing, handsome favors, consisting of fancy silver horseshoes, watchpockets, feather of fancy sliver horseshoes, watchpockets, feather fans and butterfly wands, were distributed. An elaborate supper by Pinard was served at a num-ber of small tables wreathed with roses. A num-ber of dinner parties preceded the ball, which will take a place among the brilliant affairs of season. The social incidents of Wednesday included pienie at Gray Crag Park, given by Oliver H. P. luncheon. Dinner parties were given by James J. summer at Narragansett Pier; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Kernochan. The feature of the night was the re-ception with music given by Mrs. Robert Goelet at her magnificent summer home on the Cliffs. The musical part of the entertainment was under the management of J. Hazard Wilson. Those who took part were Miss Lillian Blauvelt, soprano; John Cheshire, harpist, and the Mendelssohn Quartet. Informal dancing followed the music. Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs's ball on Thursday night at the Casino was extremely beautiful. The ballroom was profusely decorated with flowers and plants, and the windows were hung with pink curtains. Elisha Dyer, jr., and Miss Virginia Fair led a pretty cotillon. There were about sixty couples, among them such handsome young matrons as Mrs. Duncan Elliott, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Burke-Roche, Mrs. Fernando Yznaga, and Mrs. Charles Ocirichs, while gir nood was represented by Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, Miss Sherman, Miss Gerry and Miss Whitehouse, all of whom went home loaded down with favors, which were numerous, pretty and useful, and included hats filled with flowers, fans, satin sachets and fancy satin boxes.

The first pole games of the season are supsed to correspond to the word go in any contest of strength and skill, and they certainly ogether a notable assemblage of fashion and beauty at Newport on Wednesday. The music, with the life and animation of the players, had, as usual, its effect, and, although better play has been seen on the same ground, yet as a social reunion the meeting was a success. The tennis tournament and glittering equipages with fine horses and eried footmen crowded about the entrance waiting for their owners. The yacht races, too, excited onsiderable interest and attracted crowds of ashionable men and women to the water-front. No matter how spiritless the previous two months may have been in Newport, there is always a revival of the festivities as the customary period approaches, and as September draws near the entera in number and magnitude August promises to go out in a blaze of glory. Of linners, this week, there will be many small and large, while other forms of entertainment will not wanting. Mrs. Robert Goelet will give a bail grow night; on Tuesday Count Vichy gives dance, and on Wednesday the annual ball at the Casino will take place. On the following evening Count Castellane will give a dance at the Re-

The Casino dances continue to be popular and many new faces were seen in the ballroom the other night. Mrs. S. V. R. Cruger, who has been the guest of Mr. Van Alen, at his Elizabethan villa, was one of the conspicuous figures. Mrs. August Belmont, another of the new-comers, wore a heliotrope satin made with a bertha of white lace and an empire girdle of yellow satin. -HIS STORY OF THE FIGHT. Edwin Barry, twenty-one years old, a blacksmith, of No. 589 First-ave., walked into the East Twentysecond-st. police station about 19 o'clock last night and gave himself up as the man who stabbed and killed John Nolan, in Thirty-third-st. near First-upon the opposite side of the street, whittling with his knife, when he heard his father call to him for help. He ran across the street, where he found his father and Nolan and several others. He says that Nolan had assaulted his father. When Nolan saw him coming he left the old man and clinched with the son. Young Barry says that in the course of the fight they both rolled into the gutter, and he can remember nothing more of the affair.

Barry is a respectable looking young man. The knife with which he cut Nolan's jugular veln was found yesterday afternoon in the cellar of No. 252 East Flity-thirdst. It had been thrown there from the street. Barry last night acknowledged that the knife was his. The blade and handle still show the bloodstains.

MLLE. SARAH BERNHARDT.

It is difficult to understand how any person who has thoughtfully considered the acting of Mile. Sarah Bernhardt can fail to see that its character is radically ignoble and essentially shallow. is radically ignoble and essentially shallow. Miles a Bernhardt has never succeeded in representing a noble woman, or even in densting a noble ideal of womanhood. The nearest approach that "The Hunchback." This was replaced by "Low Tandem." Woman seen. noble woman, or even in denoting a noble ideal of womanhood. The nearest approach that ideal of womanhood. The nearest approach that the has made to that achievement was seen in her recent impersonation of Izeyl, at Daly's Theatre, in London. The note of sincerity was, indeed, absent from the pathetic portion of that work, but mechanically it was remarkably good—as seen on the first night. Mile, Bernhardt has lately furnished the key to her nature in a declaration made to a Paris journalist, stating her principles—which are exactly what might have been expected. Incarnate exactly what might have been expected. Incarnate selfshness and senseless and mischlevous levity selfshness and senseless and mischlevous levity shave not, at any time, probably, been more explicitly proclaimed. Mile, Bernhardt, as reported, says:

"I always burn my boats behind me. What is "past is past; I trouble no more about it. And the "same as regards the future. I enjoy the moment "and give no thought to what may happen to-mort"row. So long as I have sufficient money for the "needs of the day, I am happy. Whenever a notion "seizes me that I wou, mae to do a certain thing." I carry out the idea at once, be it ever so eccentric."

Miss Stacey was several years ago a member of the Casino company, and later she was in the company which supported James T. Powers.

"A Night Off" will be followed at Daly's Theatre by "Mrs. Othello," an adaptation from the French by Fred Leade and Arthur Shirley.

"MISS INNOCENCE ABROAD."

The audience at the Bijou Theatre last night had a good deal to put up with, between the weather and The latter was "Miss Innocence Abroad," the play. The latter was Miss innocence Abroau, a farce with three English authors, not to mention the French ones. It was played by a company headed by Miss Fanny Rice, who was popular here headed by Miss Fanny Rice, who was popular here in comic opera a few years ago. The reputation which she then gained will not be improved by such diluted decections as "Miss Innocence Abroad." A little was done to brighten it up by Charles Coote, and Miss Rice herself gave some amusing inita-tions in her miniature theatre. There is nothing in the rest of the entertainment that need induce any-body to neglect cooler places than the theatre on such nights as these.

CONGRESS VOTES TO ADJOURN.

A LONG NIGHTMARE OVER.

ONLY A TEMPORARY RESPITE.

From The Providence Journai.

Congress has voted to adjourn on Tuesday next and the country will be much relieved when it has carried out its resolution. The same old aggregation will meet again in December and make all the trouble it can until the fourth of March following, so the present easement is only temporary.

THEIR DEPARTURE WILL NOT BE STOPPED. Congressmen will go home next week, and it is safe to say that nobody will try to stop them. On the contrary, the voters will keep a great many of them from going back. From The Baltimore American.

A DISCREDIT TO ITS PARTY.

From The Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.) From The Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.)

It will be remembered as a Congress which, instead of being a credit to Democracy, was distinctively and emphatically a discredit to Democracy. Its passage of the income tax was infamous. It was so gross a betrayal of Democrate principle and was so gross a betrayal of Democrate principle and so base a surrender to Populist idiocy that not in many years can the harm resulting therefrom be outlived. Add to this a Tariff bill which is an abomination, and it is no wonder the people of the country will witness the adjournment of Tuesday with no feeling of regret.

HIS WORK IN NEW-YORK THEATRES FOR A THE BROWN PLAYER WAS NERVOUS AND COULD

Augustin Daly will begin the visibly active work of his twenty-sixth year as a New-York manager. He has been one, to be perfectly accurate, for twentyanniversary of his opening of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, in Twenty-fourth-st., where the Madison Square Theatre is now. Since then he has pursued an earnest, industrious and clearly defined course and has attained results most important to the history of the drama in America. Twenty-five years is a long time for any man to hold a position as a leading manager in such a city as New-York, where rivals are so many and public taste is so

Three persons have been as constant in their positions as actors as Mr. Daly was in his as a manager. James Lewis, George Clarke and Mrs. G. H. Gilbert were members of that first company of Mr. Daiy's, and they are members of his company now. The others in his ranks for the first season at the Fifth Avenue Theatre were E. L. Davenport, D. H. Harkins, George Holland, George Parkes, who died last week; Miss Agnes Ethel, Miss Fanny Davenport and Mrs. Chanfrau. Mrs. Scott Siddons, Miss Clara Morris and Miss Kate Claxton were added.

Before he tried to manage a theatre in New-York he had been a newspaper man. He came here from North Carolina, where he was born, and wrote dramatic criticisms for several papers. Before coming to New-York he had begun to write plays,

On September 18 the new season opened with made a record of over 100 performances. All that this season was the run of "Twelfth Night," which made a record of over 100 performances. All that had ever been said in praise of Miss Rehan in other Shakespearlan parts was repeated and multiplied of her Viola. The career of the play was a triumph for her and for Mr. Daly. The 19th performance was given on Ajoril 19, and was attended by members of the royal family, the American Ambassador and Consul-General and persons prominent in all branches of politics, society, interature and art.

The career of this play established Mr. Daly's Thouse as one of the fashiomable theatres of London. It is not easy to gain that position, but Daly's Thouse as one of the fashiomable theatres of London. It is not easy to gain that position, but Daly's Theatre has done it in a wonderfully short time. After the run of "Twelfth Night" the theatre was occupied by Mme. Duss, and she was followed by Sarah Hernhardt, who closed her season and that of the house on July 21.

Last winter Mr. Daly received the Lastare Medial from Notre Dame University. It is awarded once a year to some Roman Catholic of such distinction as to be deemed worthy of the honor. The list of those who have previously received it is one that makes the honor the more marked.

For the early part of the present season Mr. Polly will pursue a policy somewhat different from what he has followed heretofore. To-morrow night at the home theatre "A Night off" will be played, with Mr. Lewis, Mrs. Gilbert and Herry E. Dixey in the cast. A company headed by these actors will afterward make a tour, playing the farces for which Daly's Theatre has always been famous. Another company will support Miss Rehan on a tour in the more serious plays of the repertory, including "The School for Scandal" and some of the Shakespearlan comedies. The two companies will unite for the regular New-York season on their return to the home theatre late in the autumn.

AMUSEMENTS FOR AUSTRALIA

J. C. Williamson, who arrived here on board the New-York on Friday, is one of the best-known theatrical managers of Australia. He will remain here for only about ten days, and will then return months, looking for attractions for his theatre, the months, looking for attractions for his theatre, the Lyceum, at Sydney, and the Princess's, at Melbourne. He will take an English company to Australia next month to play "The New Boy," and he has engaged some twenty actors for his Christmas pantomimes. He and his partner, Mr. Musgrove, also have a permanent comic opera company. Mme, Melha is to go to Australia in August, 1826, to sing under their management in twenty concerts.

SENATOR GORMAN IN THE CITY.

Senator Arthur P. Gorman arrived in this city from Washington last night, reaching the Fifth Avenue Hotel shortly before 10 o'clock. He will go Avenue Hotel shortly before 10 o'clock. He will go to Manhattan Beach to-day, and to-morrow starts for Saratoga, where he will spend two or three weeks. Some new features were introduced, and both the old and the new created the customary degree of amusement. The Kilanyi pictures were, as formerly, the most striking attraction of the entertainment. AN OVERWHELMING DEFEAT FOR THEM IN THE FIRST CONTEST-BROOKLYN DOWNS CINCIN-NATI IN AN INTERESTING STRUGGLE.

GAMES YESTERDAY.

New-York 18, Louisville 6, Boston 8, Clevbland 3, New-York 5, Louisville 1, Brooklyn 5, Cincinnati 3, Philadelphia 13, Pittsburg 6,

The Giants have just wound up a remarkably successful week, having won seven consecutive victories. Such work has naturally enabled them to close up some of the space between themselves and the leaders, and their winning percentage in the week has been increased twenty-seven points. Last Sunday Boston led New-York thirty-eight points, and Baltimore led New-York forty-one points. Now Boston leads New-York only twentyfive points, while Baltimore is only five points away. Another such week and even the slow thinkers will begin to see.

The double-game programme was offered at the Polo Grounds yesterday, but as the Giants were scheduled to meet the despised tail-enders a great turnout of spectators was not expected. The result, however, was a gratifying surprise, for 9,000 people went up to the Harlem Valley to witness the Giants win two games from their Louisville rivals and wind up a fine week's record. The Catholic Protectory Band was present and helped to cheer the weary players with a well-selected musical programme. The young musicians are imtheir work and their tuneful selections

Admirers of baseball certainly had their fill, for the players were lined up in battle array for over hours. So much robust exercise in such weather is trying and the players of both teams were thankful when the sun slid down behind Coogan Hill and the battles for the week were over. The local players won the first game with ridiculous ease, and they did not have a great deal of trouble winning the second.

HOW THE FIRST GAME WENT.

The first game was started shortly after 2 o'clock with Nichol pitching for Louisville and Meekin pitching for New-York. In the first four innings the Giants scored eleven runs to one for the visit-ors, and consequently the remainder of the battle lost much of its interest. Davis made a home run hit into the 25-cent bleacheries in the first inning.

hit into the 25-cent bleacheries in the first inning, and Farrell made a home run in the third. Meekin eased up after the third inning, using slow curves during the latter part of the game.

The real feature of the contest was the sensational base-running of Doyle and its "tragical" ending. Better work in this respect has never been seen in New-York. Doyle had stolen six bases when he tried for third base and his seventh in the sixth inning. He seemed to have reached the base safely, but Umpire Hurst called him out amid the hooting of the crowd. Doyle protested a little too vigorously to suit the umpire, and Hurst ordered him out of the game, Wilson taking his place. The score: NEW-YORK

again won, but they had to exert themselves to do it. Wadsworth was effective for three innings, but in the fourth and eixth innings the Glants hit his curves hard enough to score five runs-more than enough to win the game.

Rusle's work was little short of remarkable, and the warm weather seemed to agree with the big fellow finely. Only one hit was made off his delivery in the eighth inning. He pitched with rare good judgment, speed and good humor, and the Louisville batsmen shook their neads as they one after another went back to the players bench. Rusie was an enigma which they could not solve, and probably no other set of batsmen could have solved
the big fellow yesterday.

Hurst received an ugiy scalp wound from a foul tip in the seventh inning, but he finished the game as umpire. The score

builetins of the progress of the riders served to increase the interest, and as the time approached when the leaders were expected to appear at the finish, the streets in the neighborhood of "The Press" office were fammed with not less than 10,000 people. When George E. Williams, captain of the Pittsburg team, turned his wheel into Fifth-ave. at Market-st, the throng became well nigh uncontrolable, and much valuable time was lost in the last square and a half of his ride.

Williams dismounted in front of "The Press" office at 12:32:30, twenty hours and thirty-seven minutes after leaving Buffalo-Pittsburg race, in which L. M. Bannister was the winner in what was second in last year's Buffalo-Pittsburg race, in which L. M. Bannister was the winner in what was then considered the remarkable time of 23:38:38. Williams finished three-quarters of an hour later. The bulletins show that few accidents occurred during the long ride of aimost 243 miles.
Charles G. Wallin, of the Eric Wanderers, finished second at exactly 1:30 o'clock.
